In presenting a "Quiet Weekend" the Society wishes to thank all those who have given their support to this and previous productions.

The Play is set on a typical English middle-class background and it is the intention of the Playwright to portray the problems, loves and humours which attend such a family, and its relationships with friends and neighbours in their joint quest for a

"QUIET WEEK-END."

The play was first produced in London at Wyndhams Theatre in 1941 the principal parts being taken by Glynis Johns and Michael Wilding.
